

South Circular Saga 1984-89

A look back to the time when the residents of Barnes, Mortlake, East Sheen and Kew fought hard against the Government's trunking of the South Circular Road in 1986 and the Department of Transport's subsequent plans to widen the road or build a relief road through Barnes Common to Chiswick. Tim Catchpole, who was in the forefront of the campaign, has come across a trunkful of papers, photos, newspaper cuttings, etc and was about to send it to the bonfire when he thought he should first share some of the juicy bits before doing so.
